

Being Passionate About Life

16th & 23rd October, 2016

It's important to be passionate in life, because passion gives purpose in life. Passionate people, overall, do live happier and better lives than the average individual. Being passionate is not just about knowing, it's also about feeling. That's what makes passions so important; they make us realize whether we are on the right path in life and give us hope for a happy and exciting future.

Passion makes us realize that we are here for a reason. Each one of us has uniqueness, passion allows us to tap into it. Our uniqueness is a blend of talents, wisdom, strengths, skills, and creativity. We all have something great to offer, and learning to accept and own what makes us unique is crucial to sharing our gifts with the world. When one feels passionate about life he/she stays fit and healthy. When we feel great physically, it will undoubtedly help us feel better mentally and emotionally. In the right frame of mind we can discover our passion.

Workshop was conducted on 16th & 23rd Oct 2016 by Ms. Semira Khaleeli. Semira is a Soft Skills & Sales Trainer, NLP Practitioner and Certified Image Coach with 22 year's experience in hospitality marketing, sales, consulting with India's blue chip hotel brands to include the Taj, the Oberoi, the Leela, The Park and Keys Hotels. Licensed NLP Practitioner (Society of Neuro Linguistic Programming) and Certified Image Management Specialist (Image Consulting Business Institute) Founder of Imagination, which offers training and coaching to individuals and corporate organisations on Sales, Soft Skills and Image Management.